The subject was heartily treated

PEOPLE OF THE DAY
Christian Science Leader at Home.
Mrs. Eddy, who recently received at her home in Concord, N. H., a delegation of something over 3,000 pilgrims of the Christian Science faith, must possess a wonderful hold upon the affections of her followers as well as impelling in them the most inspired confidence. This great throng made the pilgrimage from Boston, where had just been held the "mother church" the annual communion of Scientists from all parts of the world, going thither upon the invitation of Mrs. Eddy. The visitors were permitted to look upon the face of the founder and leader of their faith, as she appeared upon the balcony of the brief space of five minutes, and this seemed to satisfy them for their journey of hundreds and in some instances thousands of miles. Mrs. Eddy's country home, Pleasant View, a charming country house, is situated on the "Malta cup" and had so far always been won by a crew belonging to the admiral's flagship. On this particular occasion, however, a crew from the Hambles, commanded by Lord Charles Berkeford, carried it off instead. A day or two later the fleet was practicing ma-nuvers, and Admiral Fisher was dissatisfied with the performance of the Hamblies. He signalled accordingly to his commander the message, "Explain reason for being late in executing the maneuver." Without a moment's delay the answer came, "We are towing the Malta cup."

HEARD AND READ
It's easier to make a fool of a man than
to make a man of a fool.
Joseph Cook was the most gigantic religious personage who arose in New England since the war of the Rebellion.
It certainly isn't strange to say he was a laborer to suffer for lemons.
"You look very badly in a shirt waist," said the punctilious man.
"I'm sorry," said the easygoing citizen.
"But I'd rather look badly than feel badly."—Washington Star.
New York Sun.—"What was it?" "Are you slaves or are we free men?" thundered the orator. "I pause for a reply." "Some of us are married," came the answer from the last row of seats.
A perfect human life—that is, a life in which all the bodily and mental powers of man are fully developed and exercised—is the highest good for the individual.
"I am still a young man," said Russell Sage the other day, "for a man is young just as long as he takes an active interest in his own life and the life of the world at large."
Lynn shoe manufacturers generally report a satisfactory business, and many of them have largely increased their output over previous seasons. A scarcity of help is reported in some instances.
"And you didn't hear of it?" inquired
Mrs. Gable.
"Not one word."
"Why I've known it for a week, so I supposed everybody heard of it."—Philadelphia Times.

Two Questions

By ... HOWARD FIELDING

Copyright, 1900, by Charles W. Hoole.

U

For a certain evening not long ago I asked two questions of tremendous importance. The answers which I received determined the subsequent course of my life.

The first question was addressed to Signor Taglia, and just came out of the dining room, and I was standing in the hall with an unlighted cigar in my hand.

"Can you oblige me with a match?" I asked.

"Certainly," he replied, taking several from the little pocket in his sack coat.

He passed along the hall and up the stairs, entirely unaware that the incident possessed any but the most ordinary and trivial significance. I heard him unlock the door of his room, which was at the rear of the house on the second floor.

MODERN APARTMENT HOTEL.

None of the Later Wreckers to be Found in Its Equipment.

"The modern apartment hotel," said the manager of such an early telephone, "is likely to have for one of its features a complete telephone system, with an exchange of its own. Every tenant has a telephone in his own apartment, with local and long distance connection. He can have this telephone right beside his bed, if he wants it, so that he can telephone anybody anywhere without getting up, if he so desires. But it is for communication within the house that this telephone system is brought into the most common and constant use."

"It is not necessary, for instance, to send a boy up to the apartment to ascertain if somebody whom a visitor desires to see is in. We simply telephone from the office to the apartment and ascertain the fact in one-tenth of the time it would take a boy to go and come back. The tenant has a perfect means of instant communication with the office without leaving his apartment at all."

"The manager or superintendent on the part of the house staff, with the office with the chef and with the engineer and the housekeeper, and so on, so that he can speak with any of these persons at any time, without any running to and fro, with a messenger."

"Such an installation costs something, but on the other hand a house thus equipped requires only half as much room, and the space of the kitchen is saved as one without such equipment."

"A newer wrinkle is the providing of a safe deposit box for every tenant. A section of the big house safe is divided into separate small locked compartments, one of which is set apart for each tenant."

"You say you have spent hours on a single line?" "Yes; and sometimes days." "Then you're a poet?" "No; I'm an angler."—Ex.

A Jeweler can afford to sell a watch under price to a woman, provided he is assured that he will have the opportunity to keep it in repair.—Somerville Journal

It is said that a bunch of sweet peas kept in a room will drive away a pair of flies.

Physician made the suggestion to a patient at a time of long illness when flies were numerous, and the simple advice proved efficacious.

—A man who won't loan his lawn mower is no lady.

"He never amounted to much, did he?" "No; but the poor fellow never had his chance."

"How was that?" "He was considered a prodigy when he was young, and was treated accordingly."—Chicago Post.
